For more than three decades, Bill has provided creative legal and business guidance to a broad spectrum of individuals, companies and educational institutions, both in Hawai'i and on the mainland, including intellectual property owners, licensors and licensees such as artists, writers, photographers, television and film producers, composers, software and game developers, publishers, advertisers, broadcasters, art gallery owners, entertainers, recording artists, musicians, record labels, architects, scientists, apparel designers and merchandisers. Bill's clients have included the University of Hawai'i at Manoa, the University of Hawai'i at Hilo, local, national and international media companies and many of Hawai'i's top recording artists, record labels and film makers.

Bill has taught at the William S. Richardson School of Law, University of Hawai'i at Manoa; University of Hawai'i at Manoa; and the Hawai'i Music Institute at Windward Community College and served as a court appointed mediator for the United States District Court for the District of Hawai'i in connection with intellectual property issues. He is past Chair of the Intellectual Property & Technology Section of the Hawai'i State Bar Association, and a frequent speaker on intellectual property, music, art, advertising, e-commerce and internet law topics, and has authored numerous articles and other materials on these topics, including continuing legal education materials for the Hawai'i State Bar Association and other organizations and publishers.
